

Student Support Scheme

The Student Support Scheme (SSS) provides funding to support student members of the Australian Mathematical Society, studying at an Australian university, to attend and present a paper at the annual conference and other approved conferences.

AustMS created the SSS because it believes in the importance of students giving presentations about their work. Applying to the scheme also provides students with a small, relatively painless first experience of obtaining funding to support their research efforts.

To be eligible for funding, students are required to present a talk at the conference. If a student at an Australian university, is not yet a member of the Society, they must join at the time of this application.

Applications must be received by the date advertised for each conference. See the events page on the AustMS website for the most up to date details.

Applications should be made via this form and sent directly to office@austms.org.au.

The panel requires details of the full cost of travel, including air fares, registration, transfer fares, accommodation, conference dinner (if that is not included in the conference registration fee) and childcare.

Typically, at most half the full cost will be supplied by the SSS. To maximise opportunities for all AustMS students, we ask students to make every effort to maximise their use of other sources of funding where available.

The panel will want to know how the student plans to fund the rest of the costs. For this reason, all support obtained, or applied for, from all other sources must be listed in the Justification field at the end of the form, or an explanation as to why there is no other support available should be given.
